

Mexican Details

KAREN WITYNSKI & JOE P. CARR

The natural hues found in earth's clay, stone and fibers are also important in Mexican design, counterbalancing its palette of strong colors. From the stark whites of intricately chinked limestone walls and earthy tones of bamboo-brush columns to the rich browns of hand-hewn wooden ceiling beams, the textures of nature's materials contribute an elegant simplicity.

*Designed by Alvaro Ponce, this Yucatán
home features a tranquil open-air
stone basin and lush
tropical plants.*

